NCI-designated cancer centers achieve patient outcomes that are 25% better than those of other centers.

We are 1 of 69 National Cancer Institute-designated cancer centers nationwide.

NCI-designated cancer centers achieve patient outcomes that are 25% better than those of other centers.

Our gynecologic oncologists are the region’s only providers performing progressive surgery and intraperitoneal chemotherapy for advanced gynecologic cancers. This type of treatment is only available at highly specialized medical centers such as ours.

We provide minimally invasive robot-assisted surgery to speed recovery.

Our comprehensive program provides programs for high-risk patients before they are diagnosed with cancer. For patients going through treatment, our palliative care team provides an extra layer of support to help patients manage their symptoms.

Our patients have access to gynecologic cancer clinical trials not available elsewhere in the region. Many of these trials are led by our physicians and researchers, who serve as principal investigators.

We are delivering the future standard of cancer care and treatment through the innovative therapies we provide.
Julia Chapman, MD

We are passionate about aggressively treating women for early and advanced gynecologic malignancies, both surgically and through chemotherapy, and are committed to educating our patients about their disease.

Andrea Jewell, MD

We strive to advance our patients’ access to clinical trials through the National Cancer Institute, the Gynecologic Oncology Group Foundation, industry-sponsored trials and at The University of Kansas Cancer Center.

Dineo Khabele, MD

We provide individualized and compassionate care for women diagnosed with gynecologic cancers, and conduct research that develops new treatments for gynecologic cancers.

Lori Spoozak, MD

We improve our patients’ symptom management and quality of life through palliative medicine. Our goal is to enable our patients to make it through aggressive treatments with fewer side effects and improved outcomes.
